

Photovoltaic market in Poland has great potential for development. Formed a new company with the best offer photovoltaic power distribution components and offering complete solutions assembly. In order to meet the expectations of the market, the Institute for Renewable Energy (IEO) for the first time conduct market research photovoltaic sector in Poland.

Aim of the study

Institute for Renewable Energy for over 10 years continuously monitors the renewable energy sources (RES) market in Poland. In this way we are able to provide up to date information on the market situation, operating companies and enterprises, and on developments of renewable energy sources. Thanks to the audience creates a market reports for the respective technologies (RES). Until now regularly appear in market reports for the solar collectors and for small wind energy.. This year will also be prepared for the first time report for the photovoltaics sector. Our main goal is to collect the most reliable figures, reflecting the market situation, in particular the sale and the amount of new installations completed in a given year, as well as to attempt to estimate the trend of development for specific PV technologies in the coming years.
